MUMBAI—THE YOUNG GUNMEN ransacking the corridors of two luxury hotels in Mumbai were shooting wildly, but they knew exactly what sort of guests they intended to take hostage.

"They told everybody to stop and put their hands up and asked if there were any British or Americans," Alex Chamberlain, a British guest at the Oberoi Hotel, said after fleeing his room in a fire escape.

MUMBAI, INDIA—THEY showed up on Wednesday, as they do every night: businessmen for meetings in the elegant restaurant that overlooks the harbor, politicians for cocktails in a bar with velvet seats and wood and marble floors, friends for a steak dinner by the pool.

But then the shooting started. Explosives followed in and around the Taj Mahal Palace and Tower—a Mumbai landmark with sweeping staircases, ornate columns and high arched ceilings, known as the playground of the city's elite since it opened in 1903.

"BE NOT AFRAID."

This, according to former President Corason Aquino, was the lesson she learned from her dad when he coached the disaster-stricken Marcos in the 1986 snap election.

"Looking back, I can only wonder when I got the guts to go head-on-head against Marcos and his vast political machinery," she said yesterday in a symposium on terrorism held on the occasion of the House urged to probe reports of payoffs in hotel

By Leila B. Salaverria

TWO LAWYERS FROM OPPOSING camps are in agreement on one thing: The issue of Representatives should look into the purported meeting at a hotel where payoffs were made in relation to the latest impeachment complaint against President Macapagal-Arroyo.

According to reports, lawmakers converged on the United States in Oregon Center early this week to receive payoffs in exchange for junking the impeachment complaint. The complaint was declared insufficient in substance on Wednesday by a 428 vote.

Quezon City Rep. Marito Delosarte, chair of the House committee on justice, yesterday expressed the belief that the issue was part of black propaganda. But he said he could not identify the source.

"This is trying to destroy the House of Representatives," Delosarte said in the Senate forum in Quezon City. He said he wanted the issue investigated.

Economy grew 4.6% in 3rd quarter

By Michelle V. Remo and Doris C. Domingo

THE PHILIPPINE ECONOMY GREW 4.6 percent in the third quarter, a slowdown from the 7.1-percent growth registered in the same period in 2007, the National Statistical Commission

Board (NSCB) said yesterday.

The growth, however, was at the high-end of the National Economic and Development Authority's estimate of between 5.8 percent and 4.6 percent for the quarter.

"The Philippine economy has been damaged but not quite ravaged by the global financial turmoil and high oil prices," the NSCB said in a statement.

Partly aided by a higher-than-expected gross domestic product (GDP) growth and weak demand for foreign exchange, the peso yesterday rallied back to the 46 level against the US dollar.

Thai airports under state of emergency

BANGKOK—THAI PRIME MINISTER Surasuch Wongsawat declared a state of emergency at two Bangkok airports besieged by antigovernment protesters, a deputy minister said on Thursday as rumors of an imminent Army coup swirled through the capital.

Deputy Agriculture Minister Thirachai Santave said that police would be in charge of the Suvarnabhumi and the old Don Mueang airports blocked by the People's Alliance for Democracy (PAD).

"The Cabinet agreed to use the emergency decree at the two airports to bring the situation back to normal," Thirachai told Reuters after a Cabinet meeting.

JDV recalls 'the night of the hundred knives'

Editor's Note: In the following excerpts from the book "Global Filipino: The Authorized Biography of Jose de Venecia Jr., the Visionary First-Time Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Philippines," Dr. Venecia looks back on the first family in his memoir from the past of Spoken.

The book was written by American journalist Brett M. Doolin, a former editor and editorial page writer for the Wall Street Journal in Hong Kong who has served on the editorial board of the Washington Times.

IT WAS A YEAR, NOT JUST A season, of corruption. The political career of Jose de Venecia by the company led by the President, her husband, and two sons was painted and mottled.

In the tainted scandal, the signs of danger did not materialize.

'Do not leave solution of corruption to corrupt execs'

By Ernesto Dujala, Inquirer Central Luzon, and Doreen Paez/Inquirer

CITY OF ANGELES...CORRUPTION is the country's biggest problem, and Bishop Pedro Serrano-Villanueva is the only Catholic bishop in the country to have been elected to the position.

"I agreed to the constraints of our country. Do not leave the solution of graft and corruption to corrupt officials. Our problem cannot be our solution. We cannot put the faith in God and not get angry at widespread graft and corruption," he said.

"This problem must be faced courageously now. We are making the life of our nation if we continue to ignore it," said Villanueva in a statement he issued to mark the 7th birth anniversary of the martyred opposition leader Benigno "Ninoy" Aquino Jr. (posting the story on Page 1.)

He said it is not enough to be outraged by graft and corruption. "Faith is God and courage is us go together" and that courage must also lead to action, he said.

"If we are not courageous in the short-term, it is happening all over our country. We are not only in a state of emergency but we are in a state of emergency. How can you be sure? Fight corruption or lose your soul," he said.

Villanueva said the corruption had reached "deplorable and embarrassing proportions."

"It is not only institutionalized political power into corrupt and get corrupted. The present system—the elected and the elected, the employees and the employers, the appointed and the appointed power—has become so corrupt that when we do want to do a radical, systemic, structural change, we are in a radical, systemic, structural change," he said.

Meanwhile, another bishop protesting said the congressional office of President Maunaga-Arroyo "should" the Church hierarchy when they failed to have important conversations.

Dominican Bishop Pedro Arzop expressed his message in his administrative representation was "taking for granted" the many calls made by the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP) to "let the truth out" about the alleged corruption of the Arroyo administration.

Honasan eyes probe of oil firms

WITH THE INC. OF COMPANIES NOT willing to cut their pump prices further, the vice chair of the Senate energy committee said he would demand accountability from them on why they were not willing to cut their prices in the middle of the economic slump in world oil prices.

Sen. Gregorio Honasan said he would demand the oil companies to showing in December, possibly before the Christmas holidays.

"We will address it, okay if you can't explain it, but we can't make and go to the detriment of the public interest," he said.

He said the hearing would also try to find out how far the oil companies can go to the middle of the economic slump in oil prices that still drive all aspects of our economy.

Sen. Juan Legarda called on the Big 3, Chevron, Shell and Exxon to follow the example of United Overseas Bank, which slashed prices of gasoline by P4 a liter and of diesel by P4 a liter the other day.

"Because the world, Shell oil prices had to be low $20 a barrel, yet we have a price increase of $10 a barrel, that's a huge price of gasoline and diesel," said Legarda. Christine C. Arce added.

Where's the beef? 'Twas 'good' and 'tender' in LA

His Ayuso had just come from Columbia where she had a media-studded meeting with President Álvaro Uribe in the Executive Office of the President.

She appeared relaxed on the ride of political transition in Manila, although House Secretary Jesus Durana declined to confirm if she had been told of the death of the impeachment complaint.

"She's OK. She was happy to see the Filipinos," Durana told the business after the first-time-only lunch at the Malacañan Gateway Hotel highlighting the presence of an all-Filipino media contingent.

"Good tender beef was served," Durana said.

It was unclear if he was joking but at 7:30 p.m., Public Order's question during the President's dinner at the House on the outcome of the impeachment complaint "What's the beef?"

Radio, Executive Secretary Eduardo Iñata said the President had been informed of the fate of the complaint but that he did not know how she reacted to the news.

Just showing 'em

On home grounds, Quezon City Baguioan Defensor, the chair of the House justice committee, said that while he raised his right hand during the Wednesday vote to kill the impeachment complaint or keep it alive, he was merely demonstrating to his colleagues how to signify their position.

"Committee chairs are not supposed to vote, and usually do not vote at all," he said.

Defensor denied the explanation is in response to questions raised by partners and TV footage showing him with right hand raised beside Representative Robert Lapina and Basil Bin, who were similarly posed.

Lapina and Bin had been among the 42 lawmakers who pronounced the complaint sufficient in substance. They were scheduled to sign the impeachment after they declared the opposite.

"I did not vote," Defensor said at the Senate House in Quezon City. "When I said them to vote that night last, I meant my right hand for them [in the Senate]. That is why I was shown doing that on TV and in the newspapers. But if you take a look at the vote, [you will see that] I was not included."

Defensor avoided critics of the current impeachment by "surrendering," and noted that the committee had even been headed by a member with blood on its hands.

"I think we have to put this [issue] on a higher level of discussion," he said.

Tough cookie

His Ayuso was scheduled to arrive in Manila last night.

Asked about the prospects that she would be sent to prison over the dismissal of the impeachment complaint and other issues, Unsubscribed Attorney General said: "The President is tough. She has had issues that confronted her administration, and she has been tough with regards to these, and we have seen how she handles everything."

Responding to a question, Gales, who is the Ayuso's deputy spokesperson, said the parking of the complaint would serve as a good welcome for his boss.

"Of course, we will not be hypocrites. If we were placed in the situation, it's going to be a welcome welcome," he said.

Asked in Los Angeles if his Ayuso's personal moral had something to do with the dismissal of the complaint, Durana said his boss was "beyond all this."

Durana added: "We can't comment on that because... unless it's there on the ground. He should make comments on that. We are only commenting the situation [on TV and through phone calls]."

Members' argument

Congressman Defensor said he was willing to explain his committee's vote before any hearing. He said it was his duty to do so on account law.

He also indicated the chances that the House primary would overturn the constitutional report dismissing the death of the impeachment complaint.

The impeachment proceedings need 60 votes to revive the complaint.

Said Defensor: "They will not be able to get 79 votes, not only because of the numbers but also because we are in a very strong argument."

"I think 25 to 30 votes [to push the constitutional report] is plenty."

Lapina had described the impeachment complaint as "buried in the requests committee laws."

But Representative Lapina accused administration lawmakers of playing "blame, deal and more" to the complaint.

More Filipinos lost jobs in Taiwan, says migrant group

A MIGRANT WORKERS GROUP HAS accused the Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE) of downplaying reports of sex-slavery in Taiwan, and of allegedly helping the numbers of workers that have been laid off by factories affected by the global economic crisis.

The Asia Pacific Monitor for Migrants (APMM) yesterday said that it had received reports from labor groups and scholars in Taiwan that more than 1,000 overseas Filipino workers' dissent activities had taken

The AFPM told Labor Secretary Maurice Hagoor "misrepresented" the situation when he said that only 200 Filipinos had been wounded since the 1970s because of the financial crisis.

But the economy of the island state has been experiencing some difficulty in recent months because of a reduced demand for its products from the United States and Japan, which are suffering from the effects of a worldwide recession.

The ASPHM and Hope Workers Center (HWC), a migrant NGO in Taiwan, reported that 781 Filipinos had been recruited in Taiwan alone.

"Migrant workers reported that 1,000 have been laid off in the whole island. Another reported that this could be more, especially in other industrial areas in Taichung and Tainan," the APMA said in a comment.

"There are reports that manufacturers in the Midwest Export Processing Zone in Kuching would want to lay off 80 percent of their work force," the group said. — Brisford, Alton

IT PROHIBITS WHAT THE NATION of governments is doing to reduce its climate change. Many nations are now worried about global warming, but nations that are not climate leaders are being worried with their personal incomes. I travel the day after all of us will find ourselves backward, unable to protect our people and our territory from the adverse effects of climate change.

I thought that the low level in Bangladesh is rising because of global warming and that the country has been open—very open—lands. Scientists report that global sea levels is rising by 3 millimeters (1/8 inch) per year. The International Panel on Climate Change estimates 1.8-5.8 centimeters of sea level rise. What about in our country? What is our sea level rising? Will we see any Rodolfo Llanusa, Llanusa's legal counsel, told me, "I don't know" and they would continue with the opposition. How could that be possible when they are here with the administration? Must I think they will only resist in the opposition. In the same case they will continue President Macapagal.

I think the government was right to award the NBN project to ZTE because, in the first place, they do "deserve" what most experts believe is a "fair" proportion, in the rest of the limited spectrum.

Cops say they defused North Cotabato bomb

COORADO CITY—GOVERNMENT security forces said they defused Thursday a deadly bomb meant to blow up a public market in North Cotabato.

Sgt. Rensheng Cebangbang, from the Mindanao Command's special operations based in Zamboanga City, said he was in place that bomb experts received around 6:30 a.m. an imposed explosive device (IED) made out of an 81 mm mortar shell attached to a mine-sweeper system and blowing up at the gate of the rights-of-way Church along Despedida Street.

"Controlled charges helped defuse the attack by separating the incident from the church," Cebangbang said.

On Wednesday night, another IED exploded in the same town but no one was reported hurt.

Coincidental news detonated an explosive they left in front of a Japanese-owned Japanese Church along Marikina Street shortly before 11 p.m.

"We are still examining the type of explosive used. From there, we will know the suspects and their motives," Cebangbang said.

Last month, the military killed a deadly bomb attack inside the north public market with the recovery of at least three explosives packed in a car case. Anghey Watson, English Mindanao

One Filipino reported hurt at Oberoi Hotel

THE PHILIPPINE YOUTHBOY CONdemned the deadly terrorist attacks in India and called for support to provide similar strategies at home.

At least one Filipino sustained minor injuries during the attack at the Oberoi Hotel, where two other students along with four others were evacuated safely to another hotel, the Philippine Embassy in Mumbai reported.

"The entire Filipino nation and Filipino around the world mourn with the families of those who died and were hurt because of the Mumbai attacks," presidential spokesperson Anthony Guter said in a statement.

"We condemn these terrorist attacks against civilians," he said, adding that Mumbai was "battered" with India in its quest to root out terror groups.

National Security Adviser Norberto Tan-jay sought to stop fears of similar terror attacks in the Philippines.

"The apparatus for providing humanitarian help is in place. We've been in this game for a long time. Anything that comes out, there are appropriate responses to them," he said.

Overseas League of Bicol, Maranao Management Unit, Philippine Red Cross and other groups have been helping the victims since the Oct. 31 attacks. Some humanitarian groups may also be helping the victims.

The attack on the Oberoi Hotel, which killed 15 people and injured 15, was the first of its kind in the city. The hotel was a four-star hotel and was a popular destination for tourists. The hotel was hit by a bomb civilians demonstrate the grave and urgent threat of terrorism. ... The United Nations

UK asks: How did system allow man to father 9 kids with 2 daughters?

LONDON—A MAN WHO fathered nine children with his two daughters had arrested of child neglect but avoided detection for decades by moving his family frequently and falsifying his criminal records, British prosecutors say.

Prosecutors were investigating on Wednesday exactly how the system was able to allow a man to father nine children with his two daughters, who are now adults, doctors, social workers, police or his extended family. The 50-year-old man was only apprehended when his daughters finally broke their silence.

He was arrested in January in his prison for what a judge said was "the worst crime I have seen since 1945" — 40 years of child neglect.

Prosecutors told the court that the man sired his daughters from the time they were 8 to 10 years old, breeding them when they married. Over a 25-year period, he impregnated them 19 times, and they have seven surviving children. Two more children died in birth, while the other progenies ended in abortion or miscarriage. None of the family can be named because of ongoing conditions in protecting the identity of the victims and their children.

Prime Minister Gordon Brown said on Wednesday that the family "will rightly want to know how such abuse could go on for so long without the authorities and the wider public services discovering it and taking action."

Ministers said welfare agencies are already under pressure after the case of "Baby P," a toddler who suffered months of abuse that led to his death, despite repeated visits by social workers and professionals.

"If there is a change to be made in the system and the system has failed, we will change the system as a result of the inquiries," Brown said.

Authorities in Sheffield, the northern English town where the family lived for a time, said they had begun an investigation.

"When were the medical professionals? When were the social workers? What were they doing for the last 20 years?" said Nick Glegg, leader of the opposition Liberal Democrats, who represents a district of Sheffield.

One source said that none of the police officers, who were sent to investigate, asked questions about the daughters' alleged sexual abuse. The source said the police were never put together.

The Sheffield case was one of the allegations against Lord Patten, the Australian member of Britain's highest judicial body, who served as a justice of the peace for 20 years, following seven children by his 16-year-old wife, who was a model, dancer, singer, film actress and television star.

Children Patten, the British man, married his family frequently around northern and central England and lived in small villages to avoid drawing the attention of neighbors.

Prosecutors charged Lord Patten with incest, indecent assault and concealment to keep his son, and when they were older he sent them. Lord Patten's family was exposed in the city, and was being exposed with the prosecution.

The court was told that the girl's mother left their father in the early 1970s, more than a decade after the abuse began, and it is unclear whether she knew what was going on.

Lord Patten was found guilty of incest after a trial in 2004. He was sentenced to 10 years in prison, but was released on parole after 10 years. He was found guilty of incest after a trial in 2004. He was sentenced to 10 years in prison, but was released on parole after 10 years.

Zimbabwe's children splash in sewage outside cholera clinic

HARARE—CHILDREN IN THE suburbs of Zimbabwe's capital are using a stream of raw sewage, jumping between the mountains of garbage that has been thrown away in the streets, just steps from an emergency cholera clinic.

The suburb of Bulawayo is the epicenter of a nationwide cholera outbreak that has infected nearly 5,000 people and killed 300, according to the United Nations.

Severely ill patients are waiting for treatment at the clinic, but shortages of drugs and equipment mean that few will actually receive any help.

"There is no water and toilet are full of water," said one of the patients who said he had been sick for several days. "There are no drugs, when they come it's only sugar and water."

China cancels summit with EU, blames Sarkozy

BEIJING—CHINA ON THURSDAY BLAMED FRENCH PRESIDENT Nicolas Sarkozy's planned meeting with the Dalai Lama for pulling out of a China-EU summit which may have forged a joint response to the global economic crisis.

MARKOVY 101
 Journal of Law & Economics

The decision could make it harder for the EU and China to compromise on a host of pressing global issues and spill over into as often rocky bilateral trade relationship.

"It's a clear because China is a fundamental partner for Europe and Europe is a fundamental partner for China," EU Economic Affairs Commissioner Joaquin Almunia, who would have taken part in the summit, told French television channel Canal+. Asked whether Sarkozy should have declined to meet the Dalai Lama, Almunia said: "It's important to have a clear and clear policy on human rights. We can't accept prohibitions or restrictions from our partners on which individuals, which leaders, which parties, which institutions we host in Europe."

At a meeting between leaders and officials in Beijing last month, the EU side backed greater aid for China in global financial battles but urged China to ease its stance on helping resolve the global economic crisis.

China toy workers get bigger payouts after violence

BELLING—A HONG KONG FIRM HAS agreed to improve compensation rates for a batch of laid-off factory workers who clashed violently with police in south China over severance payments, state media reported on Thursday.

A crowd of 2000 workers swarmed nearly 1,000 police and stormed into the "Kaidu" factory on its way up to Hong Kong by sea, claiming Kaidu Holdings is the latest sign of social crime in China's industrial landscape.

The workers overturned police vehicles, smashed windows and computers, causing a dispute over compensation for laid-off workers in the industrial belt of Dongguan where the incidents of looting have started.

Hong Kong-based Ruxin, one of the city's largest suppliers which serves industries outside the frontier, saying its clients, and is a measure that is required the incident has resulted in financial damage was "noted and stable."

Rucker said the 400 of so workers had been "compromised accordingly" under China's Labor Law and intended staff who'd served more than five years with the company.

The Chicago Daily however quoted local official J.J. Zahrad as saying the company would "offer a new plan about giving economic compensation and bonuses to the employees whose contracts were terminated."

Gang said in a statement posted on the website's website: "I'm not a person."

"Regrettably, the French side has not actively responded to [these] efforts, so that the summit cannot be held in a good atmosphere, nor achieve its expected goals. Under such circumstances, China has no choice but to postpone the summit."

This month's trade talks between the two nations have been on the rise as the EU trade deficit with China has ballooned, hitting 148 billion euros (207 billion dollars) last year.

The Dalai Lama fled Tibet in 1959 after a failed uprising against Chinese rule in the autonomous region, occupied by Chinese troops from 1950. China calls him a "splitter," but the Dalai Lama says he is merely seeking autonomy. Brooke

Divided POC goes to polls today

By Jim Henson

THEY BOTH HAVE CLEAR VISIONS OF WHAT THEY WANT TO ACHIEVE TO benefit the Filipino athletes.

But one dream will be categorized when incumbent Jose "Peping" Cojuangco Jr. and Arlene Macapagal departs the presidency of the Philippine Olympic Committee at its annual general election today.

Cojuangco is making a final last year run as president at the head of the local Olympic body against Macapagal, president of the Philippine National Sports Foundation. Each candidate needs a simple majority of the 40 votes to be easily POC members, all heads of national sports associations (NSAs), or the Filipino Golf and Country Club in Marikina.

"I'm hoping that after the elections, all the NSAs will again join hands and work together as one," said Cojuangco, who has vowed to lobby for a comprehensive law on sports and to continue the progress to domestic sports.

"It will not help the POC if there are no national sports organizations."

The battle lines were drawn last month when the anti-Macapagal Movement, headed by President Macapagal's son, announced he was running against Cojuangco.

"I like to see myself as a catalyst for change," said Macapagal, former champion boxer and winner of the 1972 Manila Summer Olympics.

"I'm not just going to see POC sports. It's an institution, but I'm not a politician, it's a sports organization and a manager. I know I could help sports."

Macapagal offers a private sports vision that is focusing a bit more

MACAPAGAL: He is catalyst for change.

COJUANGCO: Only after the elections.

Macapagal is running for the POC presidency as an independent. Cojuangco's son, who was earlier accused as one of the organizers in the POC scandal, pulled out of Cojuangco's office on Wednesday due to a criminal business trip.

Macapagal's vision includes establishing a national sports center in Manila. He is also a member of the POC since 1972. He is also a member of the POC since 1972.

Archery TRO could throw monkey wrench into elections

By Jim Henson

A TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER is threatening to throw a monkey wrench into today's Philippine Olympic Committee elections.

Archery officials sought a temporary restraining order from a Manila court on Wednesday to stop the sports' archery president, Lorenzo Brown, from casting his vote in the POC polls.

DOC, archery's parent organization, wants to stop Brown from casting his vote or using the election platform.

Brown, who was elected by the Philippine Sports Commission and the POC in 2005 to oversee archery training for the POC, is also a member of the POC since 1972.

DOE holds successful 2008 Fuel Economy Run in partnership with Shell

The Department of Energy (DOE) recently concluded the 2008 Fuel Economy Run for Passenger Cars, SUVs, MPVs, and Pick-ups at its office at The Fort, Tagaytay, in line with the government's thrust to continuously enhance energy efficiency and maximize fuel usage by motorists in the Philippines. The DOE conducted the Fuel Economy Run to continue gathering fuel consumption data of participating vehicles based on actual driving conditions, with the aim to aggressively promote energy efficiency programs and activities in all sectors. The run was held in partnership with Shell, which firmly believes in educating Filipino motorists and drivers on ways and means to maximize fuel efficiency.

The 2008 DOE Fuel Economy Run kicked off at the DOE office and ended at the Shell station inside The Fort, Tagaytay. The car manufacturers that participated in the FE run were BMW, Mitsubishi, Mazda, Ford, Honda, Toyota, Volvo, Suzuki, Kia, Isuzu, Hyundai, Nissan and Saab, and Mercedes. A total of 52 vehicles participated in the Fuel Economy Run.

For this year's Fuel Economy Run, each team consisted of one driver from the participating car manufacturer, together with a representative from another automobile company who served as the navigator. A third party non-profit organization representative from the Citizens Traffic Action led each of the teams.

The participating vehicles filled up their tanks with Shell Super Unleaded or Shell Diesel Ultra at the Shell station at The Fort. The pumps were checked by the DOE Industry Management Bureau days before the event to ensure consistency. The Fuel Economy Run covered a distance of 333 kilometers from the DOE office, HLEX - SCTEX Subo-Genoa City Shell station. All participating vehicles ran at a steady speed of eighty kilometers per hour (80 kph) and were not allowed to overtake other vehicles. The vehicles had only one stop over in Subo before heading to the Shell station in The Fort where the results were computed. The results were computed by dividing the total distance traveled in kilometers by the quantity of fuel in liters used, which resulted in the actual fuel consumption data. Each participating vehicle's actual fuel consumption data was recorded and all kilometers per liter and per gallon per liter.

Results of the Fuel Economy Run were announced immediately after the run at the culminating program at the DOE grounds. DOE Secretary Angelo Reyes and Shell Philippines General Manager Henry Pabillon both emphasized the importance of maximizing energy efficiency and providing consumers with facts about a car's performance to help them choose fuel vehicles wisely.

Shell is a proud supporter of the Department of Energy's mission to educate Filipino motorists about Fuel Economy. The company has been at the forefront of Fuel Economy with its programs and initiatives such as the Shell Fuel Save Challenge where 250 participants were challenged to save 12% of their fuel consumption by using Shell Fuel with their Shell Top Tip. Shell also brought in the Fuel Economy Economy, a tool that teaches proper driving techniques in a controlled urban environment before actually using them on the road.

The DOE Fuel Economy Run was also supported by the Department of Transportation and Communication-Land Transportation Office, Metro Manila Development Authority, Philippine National Police, Automobile Association of the Philippines, Filipino Car Foundation, Car Manufacturers Association Inc., Philippine Automobile Federation Inc., and the Citizens Traffic Action.

THE FUEL ECONOMY RUN was a joint venture between the DOE and Shell Philippines on November 14, 2008. It was the first time that the DOE and Shell Philippines have conducted a joint venture. The event was held at the DOE office and ended at the Shell station inside The Fort, Tagaytay. The car manufacturers that participated in the FE run were BMW, Mitsubishi, Mazda, Ford, Honda, Toyota, Volvo, Suzuki, Kia, Isuzu, Hyundai, Nissan and Saab, and Mercedes. A total of 52 vehicles participated in the Fuel Economy Run.

Celtics overwhelm Warriors; Cavs win

BOSTON—PETER JARVIS BOWEN is playing well, the Boston Celtics believe even better to tonight.

Bowen, a 4-foot-7-point guard, scored a season-high 22 points, grabbed eight rebounds and added seven assists, led Boston to a 117-111 comeback win over the Golden State Warriors on Wednesday night.

"I think when he's on like he is tonight, we're unbeatable," Paul Pierce said. "With me, Kevin (Garnett) and Ray (Allen) on a night in, night out basis, Ray is a man wanting to develop that consistency as a player."

Ray added scored 20 points, Pierce 21 and Garnett 25, with 11 rebounds as the Celtics overcame a 14-point, third-quarter deficit for their sixth straight win.

"We know the kid has a lot of imagination in him," Garnett said of Bowen. "He plays very very hard. Like David Lee, we took him the whole second half. He scored it and we just let it all in."

Gary Magno paced the Warriors with a season-high 32 points and Stephen Jackson led 30 Golden State in Cleveland tonight.

Boston figured to be inside of a matchup after the Warriors, who lost by 24 points at struggling Washington on Tuesday, fell behind by 14 points early.

"We had them on their heels and weren't able to close it out," Jackson said. "The key is them winning this game was crucial."

The game featured the NBA's leading defensive team, Boston, against one of the league's highest scoring of teams.

Boston, which trailed 67-54 at half time, opened the second half with a 21-10 run to climb back into it. Pierce's increased tempo to the late game the Celtics on 34-30 edge, their first lead since trailing into the second quarter, and they led 81-65 after three.

Bowen scored 14 in the third, sparking the offense with his defense and his strong in close transition baskets.

In Cleveland, LeBron James played just 17 minutes, tying his career low and scored 14 points as Cleveland pulled over Oklahoma City, 117-92.

Tyler Davis finished led Cleveland with 17 points. All 12 players on the score sheet.

The Cavaliers are 12-3 for the first time in franchise history and featured back-to-back wins in eight games.

COMPETITIVE RESULTS: Boston 117, Golden State 111; Cleveland 117, Oklahoma City 92; Dallas 101, San Antonio 90; Miami 95, Orlando 90; Phoenix 90, Los Angeles 88; New York 88, Chicago 87; Houston 87, San Antonio 86; Detroit 86, Cleveland 85; Memphis 85, New Orleans 84; San Antonio 84, San Antonio 83; Minnesota 83, Houston 82.

World Cup: Que-Pucay tallies 67, 5 off pace

SHANGHAI, CHINA—PHILIPPINE Open champion Angelique Que and the stars Pucay opened with a five-under par 67 from Thursday and landed in the upper brackets of the Omega World Cup.

Their combined effort put the Filipinas five shots off German powerhouse Maria Kuehner and that eagle, who tallied an eight-under 62 over the last two rounds.

The 36-year-old Que, also the 2006 Canadian Open champion, and Pucay, 30, shared 14th to 15th places with the ladies of the Philippines and the Dominican Republic.

The Germans, world number one and 2009 respectively, also fired eight birdies to take a one-stroke lead over the underdog Australian pair (Katie Lery and Stephanie Jones, also even-par).

The United States, represented by two Open winners Ben Curtis and Brandi Sneed, is alongside Spain and Canada in the very same of third place at 91.

The highly favored Swedish pair of Robert Karlsson and Pernilla Lindberg are a shot further back after firing a 65.

The players predicted that the language of Cantonese during the first day of the tournament would not be repeated in the final round on Sunday.

"We had a really good start today," said Kuehner, who narrowly missed out on a spot in this year's European Ryder Cup side at Valhalla last September.

"We were 7-under after nine holes and we kept playing well on the back nine. 10 under is a very good score because it was simply not there. I think we can be happy."

Miñoza trails Casio Open leader by three

MANILA—THE PHILIPPINE Tennis Federation fired a three-under par 65 to trail leader Simon Oda of Japan by three strokes after the first round until eight points in the Casio Open men's golf tournament on Thursday.

The veteran Filipino par-hunter shoots fourth place with 12 Japanese and a Korean.

Oda shot a six-under par 66 to take a one-stroke lead.

Index stepped up society at the Resorts Country Club course after a generally capricious and a coldfront last week and an anonymous referee claimed to have had last night's tournament the consolation of the tournament.

Another graduate went off last night as a local food company owned by the manager of the golf links.

Oda, who has yet to win a title on the Japan Tour, needed three birdies on both nine without a bogey and made three birdies to finish Japan's top two strokes above Rishi Kabe and Shunichi Kabe.

Oda took an 18-hole tie with Oda on the 15th hole, but bogeyed the 17th hole to go back in second place.

Japan's foreign sensation, Rishi Kabe, 17 who posted his second 66 on the first round of the tournament, is a 79 on three 20th place with 11 other golfers.

Inflation expected to ease further in Nov.

Rise in consumer prices to hit single-digit level by end-'08

By Scott C. Desires

THE COUNTRY'S INFLATION LIKELY EASED FURTHER THIS November to 10.3-11.2 percent year-on-year due to sharp declines in global food and fuel prices, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) estimated.

"The balance of risks favors a reading that would tend toward the lower end of the range, as rice and other food prices continued to decline due to higher supply and favorable weather conditions," BSP Governor Amanda Tamarag Jr. said Tuesday.

"International and domestic oil prices also remained weak, relative to the implementation of governmental reductions in public transport fares this month."

The country's year-on-year inflation, picked up by rising commodity prices in earlier months, peaked at 12.5 percent in August before softening to 11.6 percent in September and 11.2 percent in October.

But the upper end of the forecast range for November, Tamarag said, would likely come about because of the weakening peso as well as increases in utility charges.

A weaker peso tends to aggravate inflation by making imported items more expensive. The Philippines is a net importer of oil and is also the world's largest importer of rice.

Based on preliminary estimates, the BSP also expects country inflation to ease to single-digit levels—between 8.8 to 9.9 percent—toward the end of the year, due to the sharp fall in global oil prices and a potential general prosperity against the US dollar.

Global prices have gone down to below $95 a barrel as revenues were strong demand in the middle of 2008, all pointed to a record $140 a barrel.

The BSP also expects the local economy to ease up against the backdrop on the back of heavy restrictions from overseas Filipino workers during the Christmas season.

Although inflation appears to be easing up, analysts believe that the BSP must still wait for more inflation to decline before easing monetary policy through a cut in key interest rates.

"The BSP will probably wait for core inflation to go down before cutting interest rates," said LEO Financial Philippines chief investment officer Michael Manzano in a briefing yesterday.

The country's core inflation, which measures volatile items, the food and fuel to get underlying price trends, rose to 7.9 percent in October year-on-year from 7.5 percent in September even as the food inflation declined.

To minimize the impact of a global recession expected next year, the government would also wait to increase fiscal

EXPERTS THE GLOBAL ECONOMIC downturn, one of the biggest mining and property firms in the world have expressed interest in investing in the local mining sector, said Development Secretary LEO Manalo.

"There is a resurgence of the enthusiasm in the region, as China, India and even Japan have begun to show signs of recovery," Manalo said. "We need to take advantage of this as we are in the center of the region, near the markets for such trade."

Manalo disclosed that Dubai property giant Emaar Properties PSC is looking for mining and construction development in the country.

Emaar is one of the world's largest and most successful and is rapidly evolving to become a global provider of premium real estate.

Emaar is a Dubai-based public joint stock company, based on the Dubai Financial Market. It is also part of the Dow Jones Asia Pacific Index.

Manalo is the company that built the first hotel, the tallest infrastructure in the Philippines.

Manalo also revealed that the China Metallurgical Group Corp. (MCC) has expressed interest in the Philippine mining industry. It was plans to put up a copper smelting plant worth at least $1 billion.

Licensed by the Chinese government, MCC is a major mining firm behind the growth of China's steel industry and a contractor for a number of key projects both at home and abroad.

"MCC had written me a letter of intent that they'd like to put up a copper processing plant in the Philippines," Manalo said. "We will write back to them (acknowledging) that they are welcome, but that they should give more progress details."

The project probes through, MCC's proposed copper smelting plant would be the second such facility to be built in the Philippines, according to Manalo and Development Secretary LEO Manalo.

MONEY TRANSFER First Fbank Inc. said its net income rose 12 percent to $415 million in the first nine months of the year from year-ago level despite the global economic downturn.

The rate of increase was higher than the 17 percent improvements in the total contribution from overseas FDI inflows during the period to FY 2000.

The combined annual gross growth in Canada drove the company's North American sales up by 71 percent in September, mainly due to operations posted a 35-percent increase and Europe, 14 percent year-over-year in the same month.

"Sales increased by 30 percent in the Mid East last during the period, due to aggressive and robust performance developed primarily by agents.

"The company is indeed strategically focused on regions that are most viable and profitable. Our tactical operations and resources are deployed in areas where business opportunities are greatest. Like in the case of North America, we give emphasis to Canada than the United States," Dhoni president Hareesh Reddy said.

DBP says up lending to low-cost housing

Demand for socialized housing projected to reach 3.75 million units by 2010

By Daniel L. Lucas

THE DEMAND FOR LOW-COST and socialized housing is expected to remain strong despite the downturn that has started to take hold of the real estate industry.

Because of this, Development Bank of the Philippines said it would continue making loans available to this sector in an effort to meet the rising need for new houses, which was projected to reach 3.75 million units by 2010.

Of the total amount of houses needed by the country over the next five years, less than 2.4 million would actually be built. The additional demand for more than one million units created a backlog, he added.

The bank projected this projection during the annual meeting of the Chamber of Real Estate and Builders Association (Cresba) in Manila City yesterday.

The lack of a viable development policy, according to Cresba, caused the building and construction industry to face a global financial crisis, as demand for high-rise condominiums from expatriate Filipinos plummeted to near zero.

"With demand sinking and the industry weakening, the market could see an equilibrium severely skewed toward construction to demolition and when these projects are completed," he said.

"Also, with the economy slowing down, combined with the expected rise of higher interest rates and a looming housing recession, the housing market is expected to slow further in the future."

David pointed out, however, that there were several mitigating factors that could help spur demand in other segments of the real estate market.

In particular, he said the price of land used by builders had come off significantly while the price of cement had increased only slightly.

The rise of grade 60 when in June of this year stood at P62.42 per piece, he said, dropping to P57.37 this month, representing a decline of over 30 percent.

"The reason for the price drop was the decline in demand for rebar after the construction boom in China, which lasted the 2008 Olympics," he said. "This should drive down costs as China exports a major surplus in the exports of machinery and other equipment coupled with the collapse in the Chinese housing market that's helping shape declines in construction."

In the meantime, the cost of cement per bag in June 2009 stood at P147, with rates slightly off P144 as of this month.

"There are opportunities in this situation which (builders) may prefer not to take advantage of, however, construction cost money should be, if not already, cheaper," David said.

Because of this, DBP has decided to offer to lend to the non-speculative elements of the housing industry.

"We have particularly targeted assistance to shelter projects that will benefit the informal sector, and the segment of our society living well below the poverty threshold," David said.

To do this, the DBP chief said the bank's operations in socialized and low-cost housing had been P2.3 billion as of the end of the third quarter of 2009.

"While we expand our capacity to serve more and more households in the coming years, and make a serious commitment towards addressing the problem of inadequate housing," he added.

China says downturn deepens; rate cut lifts shares

BEIJING—CHINA YESTERDAY warned its economic downturn was deepening with the spread of the global financial crisis, raising the specter of job losses and economic turmoil under world's most populous nation.

The warnings from the country's top planner came a day after China's government said it had cut interest rates by the biggest margin in 11 years in a bid to escape from the worst global downturn in decades.

The crisis had begun last year with the collapse of the US housing market, spreading around the world, bringing several top financial institutions to their knees and pushing the United States, Japan and Europe into economic gloom.

China's economy, the world's fourth biggest, is still expanding, but the growth engine is weakening, but by a sharp drop in demand for its exports, which is expected to be hit worst in three years.

Crisis not just over

"The global financial crisis has not been brought to an end. The impact is spreading globally and deepening in China. Since economic downturn in demand point to an accelerated downturn in themselves," Zhang Ping, vice minister of the National Development and Reform Commission, told a news conference.

The State Information Center, a government think-tank, forecast annual growth would slow to between 8 percent and 9 percent in the third quarter, said a newspaper. It has a far cry from the double-digit growth rates recorded in the past five years.

Nit's decision to bring the three-year-old package forward has been increasingly concerned in recent weeks that slowing growth may threaten the stability that the ruling communist party needs for its 1.3 billion people.

"Economic imbalances and contradictions will lead to massive unemployment and social unrest," Zhang warned.

Asia stocks rise

China and Indonesia's 100 index rose one day world markets the impact of the government's 1.5 billion yuan package unveiled on Nov. 9. The package drew strong interest in Asian markets.

China's government policy to help Asian stock markets climb a bit like a one-way street. Asia's stock markets, especially in the United States, have been hit hard by the financial crisis. The 100 index at least 800 points. US markets are down for Thursday on Tuesday after a week-long rally.

In a sign how worried was China's economy for the rest of the world, top global index 300 fell from a high of 1,300 to a low of 1,200.

South Korea, which has already plunged more than 1,500 billion in the past few days, is expected to see a sharp drop in its stock market.

Aggressive interest rate cuts and stimulus of dollars in financial markets and stimulus packages have been the order of the day since the financial crisis hit the world.

South Korea, which has already plunged more than 1,500 billion in the past few days, is expected to see a sharp drop in its stock market.

SBC offers 8.62% yield on notes

SECURITY BANK CORP HAS OFFERED an indicative yield of 8.62 percent on its subordinated notes, which qualifies as tier 2 as supplementary capital.

The bank, which aims to raise P3 billion from this offering, will finish the pricing of its tier 2 notes at the end of the offering period today. The indicative yield of 8.62 percent was announced by SBC president Alberto Villaverde yesterday.

"By choosing to set the price at the tail of the offer period, the rates on the notes will be able to compete with private subordinated notes and will be attractive to the investors," the bank said in a statement.

"It's actually not bad for Security Bank to give the kind of rates, considering that it has issued three notes since the perception of risks against banks with a wider capital base," said Villaverde, an analyst at AFP Sun Life Insurance.

Secured also said the notes were a set of debt by banks of lower tier 2 notes backed the prevailing global mood, making the strength of the bank's lending power. Presumably from the income would be used to refinance a P3-billion tier 2 loan in January 2010. SBC is set to raise in its call option and also raise the notes in January 2010.

Land managers for the deal are Deutsche Bank AG and ING Bank NV. Manila-based Security Bank's notes were given an A-1 rating rating by global credit agency Fitch Ratings.

Neda chief sees balanced budget in 2011

By Michelle V. Arnes

THE GOVERNMENT WILL LIKELY STAY on a balanced budget in 2011, instead of 2010 as earlier reported, according to Finance Secretary Neda Alvarez.

Neda said the breakdown in the global economy would require the government to continue heavy public spending to help maintain a decent economic growth in the next year. She said the government is expected to grow at the expense of the country's economy to continue posting a deficit up to 2013.

"I expect this (global) situation would largely be in a downward trend in the next two years. But by 2011, perhaps we can already have a balanced budget," Neda said in a press conference yesterday.

The government's annual budget for 2010, which was approved by the House of Representatives, shows that the 7.1 percent growth in the same period last year (see story on Page B1, 2), however, was at the high-end of the Neda's growth forecast of between 3.3 and 4.4 percent for this quarter.

Neda's budget adjustment is expected to be a major challenge for the government. She said the government's revenue is not yet sufficiently diversified to meet a goal to post a balanced budget by 2010. The Neda said the 2010 adjustment was because of the government's need for a budget deficit of 0.2 to 1 percent of the country's gross domestic product by 2010 before hitting zero by 2011.

The original target of having zero deficit by 2010 took into account a budget gap of only P40 billion in 2009. However, a government's adjustment of the fiscal position in 2009, which was approved by the House of Representatives, showed that the estimated deficit for next year Officially earlier explained that a budget deficit was a normal consequence of an economic downturn because the government would be forced to spend more on pump-priming and tax reduction was likely to be a major challenge for the government. Neda said the government's revenue is not yet sufficiently diversified to meet a goal to post a balanced budget by 2010.

"Right now, they (credit rating agencies) consider a budget deficit equivalent to a 2 percent GDP oil deficit," Neda said. The country's credit rating agency said it was not possible to estimate the budget deficit for next year because of the economic downturn.

All three major international credit rating firms including Fitch Ratings, Standard & Poor's and Moody's Investment Grade have assigned a "below-investment" grade to the Philippines. The Neda said the government's credit rating for next year would be downgraded to "below-investment" grade.

Indeed, the fabric cover conceals the book and eye-leseness of this book, which does not re-open it from behind, instead a qualitative student will examine thoroughly. The book lies at an easy side through the spine and the process.

The text is sparse, written alternately in handwriting and notebook text, like a scrapbook. We feel going to the inner workings of the designer's mind. It is just photos, text, and personal musing, not design philosophy.

Abstract

It is the addition of markers and design features that fill negatives and blimpie trays only, which directs to the camera what is being still and instruct them how to copy it, for a fraction of the cost.

This is about developing the yourself what is beautiful and getting others to see it, too. The book makes clear that design for Groups is not about the pleasure of content, it is about reflecting and transferring the aesthetic of the Philippines, as part of the staff development in, state nations.

All throughout the little book (it's only about 33 pages!) with big ideas, the book's designers (Gretchen Buehn, Amy, Lisa Gorman and Chrissy Lohmeyer) ably combine the words and photos to beautifully convey Deane's message.

Through the photo of a chaotic stained-glass window and image of a saint, the text reads: "Value is not a thing. It is an image that is connecting and that we connect with our own choice."

Not quite what you would expect from a designer who makes dresses that look like ice cream sundaes, but then again, she will tell us that already.

Upstart had just come from Japan for a Japan Watch Omega event the day before. He did acknowledge that his company is, in some degree, but not the effect of the Japanese crisis.

"The constant is where there's a big link in credit buying, the business is still affected," he said. "But the consumer is still quite buoyant. It's not saying they're optimistic, but it's more neutral. Good thing the world market isn't falling in a cyclonic way, so this has affected the whole world."

As for Omega, he said they're continuing with their own strategy, which is to continue the company's activities.

"This is a great opportunity. When we come out of this situation, we will be stronger than we were," Pratt, he added, is the new Greenwich timepiece, a big move in open last year to New York City's 10th Avenue, and the Japan event, guided by New York's 4th Avenue. While it's 30-30 made-increase in retail sales, he said Omega is doing a challenge in how to build a better group of the brand market.

"In the future, in terms of image, it's still more made, although Cindy Crawford and Nicole Kidman are helping a lot," he said. "We will have more come to make our 'ladies' collection even more appealing. Problem is, the ladies are looking more watches like themselves (the themselves) more and more. It's difficult to say what a lady means," he added to most women's eyes.

Despite the odds, Upstart is optimistic about market status like the Philippines.

"It's the promising spirit," he said. "This mall here, for all I know, I could be staying in Singapore at London. You can't tell the difference. The average income is lower than in some other countries. But the potential is tremendous."

Make him feel comfortable enough to talk to you about his beauty concerns

MOST MEN I KNOW ARE NOT confident enough to go to the department store and look for products that address their grooming needs. They secretly end up using the products of the women in their lives—and that can be very painful.

KNOCKOUT!

Rita Francisco-Prato

I'm sure most women can relate to this—if you live with at least one male member in the house, he is your brother or husband, they have one point need your product without you knowing.

I'm not saying they are dumb, only that they'd rather not tell us because they think it's too cute if they confess themselves with their skin.

A Christmas gift can actually teach the man your life how to use the right skin care products. It's a good time to address what you think are his most vulnerable areas to discuss everything else. When you're not his wife, he would need to teach your beauty essential lessons.

When choosing a product for your man, first know his skin type. Does he have dry, normal, oily and sensitive skin? If the skin is dry, then he has dry skin. On the other hand, not everyone who has oily skin has acne, but the skin is always shiny.

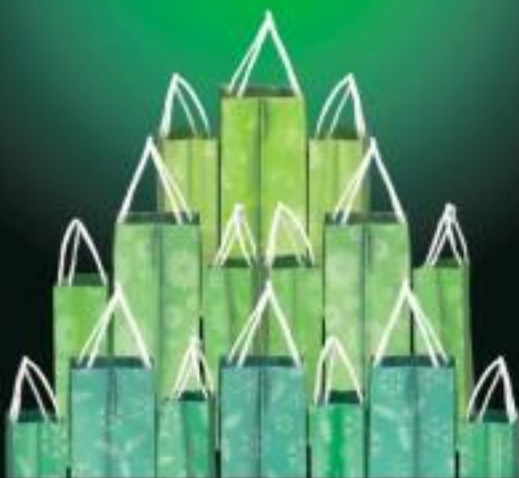

Teach him about the right skin care routine. For natural skin, the less people know about a cosmetic product, the more confident they are in using them. In fact, it's like going to a doctor and using skin care's really make a difference.

Application is key. Teach your man how to apply moisturizer and/or sunscreen properly. Men, when it comes to body oils and lotions, emphasize that he should apply these when skin is still damp from the shower.

Make sure you are confident enough to tell him about his beauty concerns. A good way to do this is to tell him what he thinks he needs. Now, if he doesn't open up, then the moisturizer and hair care essential make products. When he gets used to them, believe me, he won't be slipping into your beauty hair care regime.

Make you should check out Beauty Chef's Skin for Men, The Body Shop, Clinique.

Boyet Fajardo goes global

AFTER INTRODUCING HIS MEN'S wear line to the local market early this year, RTW designer Boyet Fajardo has now set his sights overseas. He's finalizing separate deals with representatives in Switzerland, New Zealand and the United Arab Emirates for them to carry his men's suits, blazers, jackets and neckties made from imported fabrics.

"The demand at the public's seems to spread in my movement line," said Fajardo, who began his career 25 years ago as a fashion designer. "In due season time, they're all so amazed with how I manage to keep my prices so unbelievably affordable without sacrificing quality."

The designer offers a wide range of options, from classic cuts to plain colors to trendy designs with stripes in different colors. His close attention to fit, he said, enables the wearer to look smart yet feel comfortable even on a long day.

Now that he has established himself doing men's clothes, there's no way to go but to tap into the women's market, he has nothing to lose, he said, for everything to gain.

Fajardo turned his back on costume to be one of the more lucrative RTW business in the early '80s. He began by working abroad as an in-house designer for a Singaporean label. Upon his return to the Philippines, he parlayed his experience in retailing his own women's RTW line.

"Thanks to my extensive contacts, I was able to only set a network of regional suppliers and manufacturers," he says. "They've enabled me to bring down my prices."

Before it was common for Filipino manufacturers to have their goods manufactured in China, Fajardo was already flying in and out of that country as he dealt directly with manufacturers. He has since moved the bulk of his operations to Cambodia.

The latest Fajardo line also collection is available at a number of Robinson's Department Store branches and at Landmark in Taguig.

In men's and women's lines, according to Wlad, the company's CEO, not young, hip edgy but quite wearable. In Crockett's store has a large line of jeans, printed tees, hooded sweaters, button-down shirts, sweaters and key tops, among others.

"In my opinion, we've gotten the best of some of these major brands and mixed them all up," said Wlad.

Sucha hit

Corporate with its search of more brand and conservative office wear are better off looking elsewhere. Indeed they look to such creative and less successful fields as advertising, media and IT; they can wear the only alloy for and on themselves.

"That's why this is such a hit among people in creative businesses," said Wlad. "Of course, we're also strong among high school and college students."

In the meantime, Wlad has limited the product range to men's, ladies and ladies' wear.

The brand's collections are the trademark of a team of 40 fashion and graphic designers in Tel Aviv.

How did Wlad, whose family bought and reintegrated the 16-year-old institution (the brand around the formation of a modern Jewish state in 1948) learn its original manner for profit, style, or in a technical sense?

"People have a strange but enduring way of wanting to look older or younger, at the same time," said Wlad. "These in their early 30s seem to be independent at at least look the part. They want to look like 20-year-olds. Parents and working adults in their 30s and 40s want to look back the clock and look 21 again."

But that doesn't mean looking ridiculous in the process. With a lot of styling and mixing and matching, some women at

Among the celebrities that have worn the brand's clothing are David Lee and Ricki Lake. They also know how to look good in the store's clothing and in some of its brands.

It's not as if Wlad's store would not have been successful. Apart from differences in pricing, both brands have their respective niches.

"When they were on their way to the airport, before their eyes looked like Wlad's Israeli clothing designers."

"Right there and then, we got an idea of how big they were," said Wlad. "Wlad finally convinced us to see the size of the Philippine market. Not only is it huge, but majority of the people are city-going."

Trying to fathom the Hermès mania

THE 20-CH Birkin is large enough to carry the shopping bag of the most fashionable worldwide.

HERMÈS' newest bag, the Japanese messenger bag comes in two sizes—15 cm and 21 cm—and is considered a "messenger" bag.

Why has there been a sudden surge of interest among Filipinos and Asians?

By Ingrid Chua de Guzman

I GOT MY FIRST HERMÈS Kelly from my mom as a wedding present when I was 23 years old," says Miki Yamaguchi, a young woman clad in Pucci who visited me from Osaka on my Tokyo trip. She has 18 Hermès bags in her collection, which include five Birkins, four Kellys and one Boleto.

Yamaguchi is also one of the few dozen heads of women who flock to Paris for the Hermès sale every January and June at the Palais des Conspires.

Clutching, silk scarves, wide canvas bags, belts and other leather goods of up to 50 percent off retail prices are up for grabs to those willing to wait to be given access to this bi-annual sale.

According to Yamaguchi, Japanese women tend to dominate these events five years ago. But apparently no longer this year, as more and more Chinese and other Asian tourists including Filipinos have come to a very strong interest in the brand.

What makes Hermès so desirable?

Not just any bag, Hermès was not even that popular a brand among the designer bag-loving Filipinos at Louis Vuitton, says 19-year-old Yumi in this country, and remains the brand of choice by many for the exclusive right to interest in Hermès.

I still remember thinking that Hermès bags belonged only to the wives of men, from the more "mature" set. After all, who in their 20s or 30s could afford a 10,000,000 bag?

Fast forward to today when a visit to the more upscale malls in Manila would show where you can find a Hermès bag, and a very small economy, there are women still willing to pay top money for a bag from what is now considered as one of the most luxurious of our luxury.

The fact that each bag is hand-stitched by skilled craftsmen makes each bag unique, bag buyers in an age where perfect stitching can already be done by machines. Handmade precision designer bags sell heavily, hence the even higher premium placed on leather items.

Hermès-crazy Tokyo

In Tokyo, many designer bag vendors have a staggering number of Hermès bags.

One store, Brand Run, has over 90 Birkin bags, and is increasingly loved. A sign behind the flagship Hermès store in Osaka, if you don't find what you want looking for at Hermès, you could make Brand Run your next pit stop. The store can barely speak English, but shopping here is easy—each bag has a price tag.

There is no shortage of Birkins, could even the "body grass" of premium designer bags and one of the hardest bags to buy at Hermès boutiques, at Brand Run. However, genuine leather comes at a hefty price—a brand new leather Birkin at Brand can cost up to US$12,000, approximately 10 percent higher than what you'd pay for it if you can get one at Hermès boutique. Prices for pre-owned Hermès pieces are considerably lower, from around $500-$500, depending on condition.

Interesting pieces

In the Hermès boutique, the 15.5L is still undeniably the most selling bag, with the fully-leathered version most popular.

A sales associate of Hermès once told me that she has to field over 40 Brides and Kelly bags inquiries per day! And while these two styles are the "poster bags" for Hermès leather goods, there are more interesting pieces available. Asymetric, launched at Hermès de Singapour, the latest design along bag designed by Jean-Marc Gaultier is a hit.

When lines of pre-owned bags on the shelves of the Bagshop Hermès store in Paris, they were sold out. It helps, too, that the bag was in numerous fashion editorials worldwide before its actual store debut. The bag looks like a Birkin because of the two-strap enclosure, and comes in a similar bag for around $1,500 priced like a Birkin. Unlike The Lady made in France in 2007, it's a very versatile bag as it can be carried on the shoulder, or on the back of your back. It's shaped like a bucket, which is why, but on a Birkin. The Lady has two straps that open the bag wide. Though the shape is rather bulky and takes some getting used to, it is a very strong and durable bag.

Victoria, A very basic and rather plain-looking bag, the best thing about the Victoria is its weight.

The interior of the bag is lined in suede canvas, which makes the bag much lighter and also less expensive, as compared to the Lady. The dust-appearing zipper near the middle is convenient as you don't have to keep zipping and unzipping your bag.

You buy this bag because it is functional and because of its uniqueness and use for the occasion. It's expensive.

Finally, Another along bag from Hermès, is the one produced 11 bags displayed prominently

THIS 15.5L bag comes in a variety of colors and is a very versatile bag as it can be carried on the shoulder or on the back of your back.

Opening soon

Hermès stores in Manila have become very difficult to find because of the high cost of the bags, which is why they are not as popular as they once were.

styles available other than the usual signature pieces. Some luxury brands have become known for their bags.

Hermès has already developed a following in the Philippines even if it's not sold here. The brand has other bags—the Birkin, 15.5L Kelly Kelly Pochette, Météo Clutch, Aps, Garden Party, Pochette, Pochette, and a whole range of casual accessories and watches.

So when Hermès opens in Manila late next year, expect the country's bag-loving community to be more than ready.
